Civil War

Assault on Orgrimmar

9.24.19 by Lohkawas Wildmane

Sylvannas Windrunner aka The Dark Lady aka Former Horde Warchief versus Saurfang, the Doomed...

No surprise to this reporter that The Dark Lady would turn against the Horde and that the Alliance and Horde leaders would remember times past when working together was much more important than falling to a greater threat. There are still concerns with reports of Dark Lady Loyalists killing civilians... I hope that is not the case. Preparations begin to take on a greater enemy now, and I hope we do not forget that we are stronger together than apart. As we say in Highmountain, "We are One".

Death! Saurfang inspired all of us to strive for true honor. And his legacy will live on in our deeds.

Horde Civil War

10.01.2019 Combat by Duel suggested by the Honorable Flarefang

Blademaster Shamzakel Khushrenada of Blademasters of Durotar hosted a duel between Horde Loyalists and Rebels at famed Gurubashi Arena... and while the Blademaster himself fought on the side of the Rebellion, the Horde Loyalists proved to be the stronger team. Let us hope this does not foreshadow a victory for our true enemies.

Travels of a Dark Iron Dwarf #9

by Urain Slaghammer

How you doing fans of Aggy? She may or may not of had a small tiff with the night elf lady outside her shop that resulted in the elf landing in the canal and her landing in the Stockade, so I said I would take over this for her. My name is Urain Slaghammer, unlike Aggy, I have not lived in Shadowforge for years as me and my kin were part of the Thorium Brotherhood.

While, I was usually away excavating for the Brotherhood, I did get to meet the Alliance frequently, and I tell you, actually being around you all really is crazy now. I was told that Stormwind was a towering city, coated in silver, with a boiling moat, frequent riots, and a grand wall 400 feet high. I must say I have been disappointed so far in finding none of that to be true. I guess the human that told me all that, years and years ago did scam me back then, I should of known he lied about Stormwind as well.

I am really happy to finally of made it to Stormwind, I am happy to finally be semi excepted in the cities of humans, I have so long wanted to visit many places, and see how other people lived. Knowledge is something many of us Dark Iron seek, so I have accepted a position as a junior member of the explorer's league.

Well, not really sure what all Ags talks about in this, she said to just introduce myself, so I guess I have. She should be out soon, like seriously, how long can they keep you in the stockades for just kickin an elf.

-Urain Slaghammer

Hello my friends!

Just a quick note for the Alliance here.

The monthly Meet and Greet will be returning on November 2nd, 2019 at 8PM at the Pig and Whistle Tavern.

Will be announcing a writing prompt at the event, and it will also be posted forums and in the ED discord. Best story will be announced at the following meet and greet, and hope to continue to do that each month. (will have to solicit donations for prizes most likely, unsure)

You will not have to be at the event to claim the prize or even participate, just will need to be alliance and on our server. But there will be a deadline to ensure all judges will have a proper amount of time to read everything.

I am happy to finally be back from my real life troubles and returning to wow

Crime Around Azeroth: New Reports as of Oct 7 2019

Corpses in the Trade District

Information requested in conjunction to multiple Horde and Alliance corpses found outside and inside the Trade Market Auction House. There seems to be no pattern to the deaths and this is a possible suicide cult. Travelers to Stormwind are warned to "watch out below".

Murder and Mayhem

Furbolg Fur Coats have been making a splash on the Black Market... and the Furbolgs have requested an inquiry and arrests in conjunction with what they deem "murder". If you have information reach out to your nearest Horde military office and ignore the new step rugs in the office.

Wanted! New Report as of Oct 7 2019

More Corpses in Stormwind

It seems that the fountain in Stormwind is now a favorite place to meet the infamous Shamzake! Khushrenada... leading to many, many deaths. The Blademaster of Durotar knows no fear. Travellers... oh never mind, at least try to make it to the fountain. Is the Horde responsible, or is something sinister afoot! Shamzake! wanted for Questioning...

Chief's Corner

Another of those months where there are more important things in the air... besides Brewfast, of course. I am talking about Running of the Gnomes... They seem to like to run and more power to them! I would love a pink mohawk for myself, but can only imagine the look on Chieftain Ragetotem or the 'Warbrave's face. Maybe I can figure something out with the extra ink from this news scroll.

But seriously! This is important and all of us have loved ones who will benefit from Running, donating our time and efforts, making lasting friendships and doing more together than we ever could alone. And men, get your checkups, as well! Do not forget this enemy attacks us all!

This is a real war and our way to make a difference in the world! Scarlet Crusade, Oct 12 6pm CST and for our new classic family Bloodsail Buccaneers Oct 19 6pm CST

Happy 10th Anniversary Gnomes!

Tasty Treats: Yongfere Blackpaw, Redwood Tribe

Stranglethorn Cocoa Mudding

- 1 cup Sugar In The Raw
- 1/2 cup baking cocoa
- 1/4 cup westfall flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 4 cups whole milk
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract

Directions:

In a heavy saucepan, combine sugar, cocoa, flour and salt. gradually add milk. Bring to a boil over medium heat; boil and stir for 2 minutes. Remove from the heat; stir in butter and vanilla. Spoon into individual serving dishes. Chill until serving. Serves 8 small bowls.

And speaking of food...

Friends of mine ran into the elusive Andrew at the new Brewfest booth "Chowdown" No surprises here, Andrew won.

Leidolf Redwood and long time Tribe friend, Ayashe Brightmane stated, he was very friendly and enjoyed Leidolf's jokes! Though I do not know how!"

Always good to see celebrities that can laugh and have fun! Andrew is #1

Rumors from The Lazy Turnip

End of Summer Festival Rumor Mill: Did you find yourself on the rooftop of Mistfall Village's The Golden Rose? Look at that beautiful scenery. Oh, and did you know a marriage took place... amongst everyone on the rooftop? The Alliance has strange customs...

From New Columnist Urain Slaghammer - Cult members spotted in back alley of the Mage district. They were worshipping some gnome, carrying her upon a pillow to a tree then circled her and bowed. it was crazy. They called her some reincarnation of Anthros

Gnomes taking over, a trusted source revealed he witnessed a gnomebotic group talking about the advancement of technology and a plan to replace key members of the alliance with robotic substitutes that will be under their control to better take control of the Alliance, and exterminate lesser races. the source can only assume lesser races to gnomes means everything that is not a gnome. sources name is redacted as he fears retribution, and assimilation from the gnomes.

Darnassus, Teldrassil by "unknown and undercover Darnassus Reporter"

Guardians of the Forest or Cold Blooded Killers?

Word is spreading from Shadowglen to Winterspring about a mysterious group exacting justice all over Northern Kalimdor. Investigators and Wardens from Darnassus have been dispatched to gain more information on the group who openly defy the self defense only stance taken by High Priestess Whisperwind. Speculation is that Archdruid Staghelm is behind this nameless organization but that has been strongly debunked by the Cenarion Circle.

Wait, those are not panthers in Stranglethorn Vale

So who are these individuals? Our job here in Darnassus is to uncover the truth as to not only their whereabouts but also their motive. Sources tell us that they are made of the local citizenry angered by the inaction of the politicians in Darnassus. Others say they are renegade Druids who have forsaken the idea of Balance, seeking vengeance for Cenarius and murdering any Horde they come across.

There have been only a few eye witness accounts from travelers on the roads from Auberdine to Astranaar. A Human knight on official business stated he was waylaid by a Forsaken patrol late one evening. He thought he had met his end when out of the forest silent figures came and dispatched the undead without a word. He rose to thank them but they were gone as quickly as they appeared.

Separated from the group, makes an easy target for these silent killers

Others report seeing carvings or drawings of an Owl's eye in the area whenever they appear. Foreign travelers refer to them as Starborne, thanking them for protecting the roads. We questioned local Sentinels about these reports but they seem to know nothing. Very unusual for a highly trained military outfit not to know about murderers operating in their vicinity. So we ask you, are they heroes or villains? Guardians or murderers?

Please send all information to the scribe's office, Craftsmen's Terrace in Darnassus. Any pertinent information will be rewarded. In case of emergency please contact the office of Warden Maiev Shadowsong or your local Sentinel Detachment.

News from the Barrens

9.22.19 Redwood Roadhouse

Redwood Tribes hosted everyone, including Grobbulus Times proprietor Jansither Moonhaze to a night of revelry, dance, and camaraderie at the Broken Keel Tavern in Ratchet. The party ended when the group saw Clan Battlehammer disembark and begin a run towards Crossroads. Drinks and food were left behind.

Both sides battle hard, giving all they had to take and then liberate Crossroads. Clan Battlehammer joined additional groups in Crossroads until finally the Horde was able to push them out!

Finally the Horde gave chase as the Alliance fell back, finished causing havoc in the small town, for the night. Some groups scattered in multiple directions causing the Horde to give chase to the borders of Stonetalon. But it would not be the only attacks upon Crossroads in the last dozen days!

Hand of Lordaeron Pushed Back, Captures Prisoner of War

Contributor: Dr. Crest - writer, Lucian - photographer

In the course of a war, not all battles end in victory. Some battles become valuable lessons. The Hand of Lordaeron learned one such lesson on Sunday the 6th of October, when an attack on the fields of Hillsbrad was rebuffed by an Alliance of Lordaeron garrison. This chronicler is not interested in softening the truth, for denying our enemy their credit will lead us to underestimate them in the future. Twice the two forces clashed, and both times the Alliance pushed the forces of the Forsaken back. Many brave warriors of True Lordaeron were killed in the fighting, and the mettle of our enemies ultimately won them the day. Know that the Alliance is a dangerous foe. Driving them out of Hillsbrad will not be an easy task, and all members of the Horde in the region are advised to steel themselves for heavy fighting. With determination, however, and the power of the Shadow and the Dark Lady, we will ultimately reign victorious.

All was not lost, however, as esteemed sister Nepentha successfully captured a straggling human woman during the retreat. Bishop Lyle Brooks was able to break into her mind and extract valuable intelligence, giving the Hand an edge in the fighting to come. The prisoner has been moved to a secret, unknown location for further questioning. The Hand shall reclaim these lands, through whatever means necessary. The Alliance, were they intelligent, would simply accept the inevitable and withdraw. Until they are willing to see reason, the Hand will fight on.

Praise the Dark Lady and the Dread Lord,
Dr. Crest

Earthen Ring Escapades

9.29.2019 Spirit Rise Thunder Bluff Call of the Shaman 3

The Earthen Ring met once again amidst the Sanctuary afforded by Spirit Rise.

The elemental threat grows, unrest still strong in Stonetalon, the Fire Lord continues to grow in strength and additional problems were spoken of amongst the members. Desolace is now added to the list of problem areas, with Air and Earth at odds.

We must grow stronger...

The Redwood Tribes

Skyseer's View

I am Okwaho Skyseer, adviser to the Redwood Tribes, Seer of the Earthen Ring, and speaker to the editor that writes these words.

I speak today with much pride in the Tribes. We have begun our journey of discovery, discovery of who we are together. The Tribes were set the task to bring Orc, Troll, and Shu'halo closer together, and the Tribes make that task a reality each day.

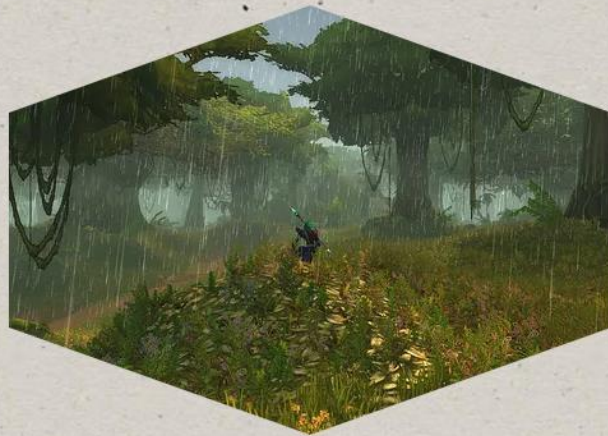

Our first Rites of Passage were successfully completed by two groups of initiates and the bond grows strong between them.

And war makes us family, too, though perhaps that was never the intent! But, is it strange that I feel a similar kinship with our enemies, at least those that struggle valiantly against the might of the Horde with honor in their hearts.

Lok'tar Ogar and May the Earth Mother watch over those of us that feel the fire and honor of Battle! /salute

Where in Azeroth is Gin'jojo

Keep track of that elusive Troll,
Gin'jojo of Redwood

Ayashe Brightmane's Blog - Part 3

Ayashe's Home

~ Bloodhoof Village, Mulgore ~

Ayashe grew up on the plains of Mulgore around Bloodhoof village. Over the years, things have changed slowly and consistently, but the talk of war has always been close at hand to the adults and the elders of our village.

Ayashe has watched as Shu'halo come back from war, injured, maimed, and longing for death to claim their bodies. She has watched mothers, sisters, brothers, grandmothers, grandfathers, and fathers mourn those who lost the battle. She has watched her friends go off to war and to never return. This is the nature of war; this is the nature of a world at war.

It was natural for Ayashe to accept her responsibility to take up the mantle of Chieftain, and lead tribes to battle, but it will never be easy to say good-bye to friends and family when it is time to return to Orgrimmar to take up new orders to head out to some unknown location in Azeroth.

Thus, when she is home in Bloodhoof Village, she is sure to scout around the outskirts, to make sure all is well, to check each building to make sure none of the beams need repairs or a hide cover that needs to be mended. Once there, she greets everyone within the village and to make sure they have supplies to last them for a couple of weeks until she can return home.

Home

This simple yet comforting word means more than anything to her.

Bloodhoof Village, Mulgore

My Heart, My Home

The Tribes met in Crossroads to practice formations before launching an assault on Human lands, payback for recent attacks upon the Barrens.

Per Master Gin'jojo we were supposed to line up as he drew out a map in the dirt for me... instead, I arrived in Crossroads to see us huddled in a circle, and later as we met Hemet Nesingwary, the Tribes were taking in the sites, no real thought to lining up attentively.

All was well when we attacked the settlements in Westfall, so we proceeded to our next target in Redridge.

However, before we could hit the main village in Duskwood, and note, the shamans amongst us clearly believe that this land is cursed for some unknown reason, a troop of Alliance rode us down from behind and stopped our advances. We returned home determined to grow stronger and grow together!

10.04.2019 Redwood Ranks Meets in Crossroads

This time, I landed in Crossroads expecting to see our Tribes circled and was not disappointed... except that again I was told we would be lined up. So, I was very much disappointed and new that Chieftain Brightmane would be, as well.

We had seen the Dwarves marching in lines and encountered them in battle and felt we needed a change!

I finally took charge and slowly but surely, the Redwood Ranks formed and Redridge was invaded, a book stolen from a tower, and a daring escape once Alliance reinforcements arrived!

Rites of Passage Part 2

9.28.19 Crossroads Journey Again

More younglings attacked their first Rites of Passage! And while the destination was different the younglings succeeded in protecting their charge from The Barrens to Feralas, by way of Thousand Needles. After a quick stop at Freewind Post, where a rogue attempted to confound the younglings off of the lift, the group braved the canyons and lower Feralas until their escort was complete in Camp Mojache. Congratulations new Tribesmen of Redwood, and good luck in your next Rites of Passage!

A small, square image of a glowing orange and red orb, possibly a gem or a magical artifact, set against a dark background.

Redwood Tribes

Three Tribes, One Family. Join Today!
