Dem's Fightin' Words

A Tall Tales Special

In hindsight, this may not have been the best time for the first ever Dem's Fightin' Words, a special Tall Tales event meant to mix words and duels in honorable challenges and praise.

Event co-host Nessima gave her rendition of good-naturedly picking on others with an amazing beat and mix of words, and took her c-host's return jibes with dance and style.

Garble also let some present have it, much to the delight of the crowd, before Jinthas Cindersong uttered words leading to an immediate challenge by Thunderhoof Chieftain Aovi Moonwatcher... and from everyone else present, including Jaerim Sorynth.

In the end, the Longwalker's challenge of no weapons/gear took Jinthas down a peg, and Leidolfr awaits a date at the argent tournament grounds to see if the young Sin'dorei might re-think his harsh dis-track!

Pictured Below: Is that Jinthas trying to plead his case to a bunch of Redwoods and Guests? This is already after several challenges to the Elders dis-respectful poem to 4 of the races of the Horde.

And in the far back... that is the Longwalker teaching Garble how to duel! Already deadly with words, watch out Azeroth, Garble is looking to kick ass and take names!

Roadhouse at Topsy Tavern

Okwaho rents some space, big party, big barfight!

When Okwaho decides where the Roadhouse will travel to next, he just doesn't listen to any nay-sayers!

Finding a spot in Stormwind that boasts a friendly attitude to Horde, Okwaho reached out only to find the Topsy Titan operates the day before Roadhouse.

Still, a determined Shu'halo, tavern owner, and ale afficianado, Okwaho wheeled and dealt with the Topsy Titan proprietors with no down payment due!

Still, as the following pictures attest to, Okwaho may owe a fee for a broken chandelier... and not pictures was a chair that tried to eat Kraa, the Lamplighter of Dalaran. It, the chair, was destroyed in the process. "Of course, there is proof of the alliance sitting on the same chandelier, so we may have to fight that portion of bill," stated Okwaho in an after party interview.

The party was non-stop and quite friendly overall, but then as will happen in a tavern, ale was spilled and harsh words spoken leading to a small barfight. The combatants took the fight to the basement, but of course, by the next morning, word was already spread about the fight out of context, no less. But the fight ended with an apology and more ale supplied by both Father Dolan and Okwaho to the injured party.

Overall, a fantastic night at an amazing venue, despite some cramped seating. Okwaho was even impressed with the size of the mugs! Okwaho promises to return when the proprietors are in attendance to extend his gratitude... and pay down his tab!

Garble's View of The Bluffs is Stunning

Some days are just more peaceful than others and nights for some on the Bluffs are spent in their happy place.

Leidolfr had mentioned how a Forsaken friend seemed to enjoy the fresh dirt mounds on Elder Rise for his sleeping needs. Blackberry and Veronique wanted to meet this unique individual, so introductions were made with Tall Tales favorite, Garble!

With heart and feeling, Garble was able to eloquently explain his joy and delight at the acceptance of himself and his people amongst the Shu'halo. He was delighted to hear that more Forsaken had been given space in the Pools of Vision, but truly, one could tell he enjoyed the amazing view from his home.

Yestermoon's News

Protecting the Bluffs

Even when the Longwalker is away on business The Bluffs are protected!

Banner deployed, fire set, and later relaxing at the pond, Redwood's Elias Dolan and Leidolfr Redwood, along with friend Blackberry take up the duty of protecting the Bluffs against Auction House and youngling attackers! Not on our Bluffs, even with the Longwalker attending to other matters, say these three... and then they proceeded to fish to pass the time.

Speaking of Defending!

Planning their own offensive, word came of an impending attack on Silvermoon City's leaders. Redwood, Kush Lords, and many more took up a defensive stance, outnumbered two to one! The defense strategy won out and the magical brooms of the city had quite a mess to clean up when the Horde was finished. Later that night, the Horde enjoyed the fresh sea air on one of the Alliance's own sea-faring vessels.

On the outskirts of Black Temple or why are we here?

Despite confusion and frustrations, The Tribes reported to Shadowmoon Valley to fulfill a promise of aid to the Demon Hunter, Taharkah Thundersong. A long history went into the decision to reconnoiter at the Black Temple, but recent disagreements within the Tribe seemed to call into question the agreed upon aid that was promised.

Most notably, some seemed upset at decisions being made by higher-ups in the Tribes organization, as had been observed at Roadhouse the night previous.

The Longwalker led the mission, but luck was not going the team's way. From out of nowhere a Warden swooped in and despite protests captured the Demon Hunter in a near impenetrable prison, the same ones that were being packaged inside the keep for transport to a more permanent prison.

In a sudden strange display, it was Artimir Autumnsong that broke the casing and the Tribes were finally able to overwhelm and capture the Warden for questioning.

Continued disagreements finally led to some members of the team stepping or sitting to the side, while non-violent means were employed to communicate with the captured Warden. Even as Leidolfr seemed to be getting somewhere, his own knowledge of future events assisting him in seeing eye to eye with the Warden, an initiate of the Tribes knocked the Warden unconscious with a telling blow. The call went out to leave the area, some few members being told two or more times to depart before the Warden's re-inforcements found them. Finally the Tribes departed the battlement Jinthas' wormhole had led them to.

Information that Illidan Stormrage was still prisoner in Black Temple was obtained, but at what cost to the Tribe's unity?

Rumors and Tall Tales

*As overheard at Spirits of the Earth
Mother Tavern*

Has Leidolfr Redwood picked up another job, this time in Dalaran's barbershop? Perhaps a new location for rune carving? Or something else?

Snow on the Bluffs? Why not! Between the scourge attacks, giant snow balls have reportedly been flung at denizens of the Bluffs... where are the watchers while this is happening?

It is the Barrens, and handful of Tribe's members. But what has happened here defies explanation as Senajo Mountainshaper looks on. Spiritwalking, Elder Druid, Kodo Dreams and hope... it all matters! Because a Druid walks among the children of the Earth Mother once again

Of course... not everyone seems excited to see Bevhalla Ragehorn again... stay tuned!

The Pond

From chill relaxation to fishing...

the pond draws a lot of attention on the Bluffs. New Druids seem captivated by the fish while many of the anglers have learned that the pond is stocked the night before the fishing derby. And visitors are always welcome! Just don't be surprised when Bluff Watchers run past chasing down the alliance... or Longwalker's for that matter!
