Summer of Fun!

End of Summer Festival

9.21.19 Mistfall Village

The End of Summer... not usually something anyone wants to celebrate, but this night was the exception!!! Booths, food and drink, friendship, and contests throughout the night brought Horde and Alliance together in the lovely village of Mistfall in the Vale of Eternal Blossoms. There was a cooking contest between the Kul Tirans and Shu'halo and games of chance with the Salty Sea Doggos! Quickfuse Cartel in charge of shenanigans, Fekital selling pets, and don't forget Geargrind Salt Mines LLC. Remnants of Hope handed out Blessings, while Chibs operated a photo booth. And while waiting for the Transmog Contest run by The Ashen Vale, Erosondvia, Aeriara, and Thelesia handed out mystery gifts by the dozens!

A heartfelt thank you to Aeriara and Thelesia who worked so hard to make a special event for everyone!

Pirate Day!

9.19.19 - Booty Bay & South Beach

Ahoy! Yours truly took a side trip down to Booty Bay and saw some interesting folks. A very nice Worgen, Halger of the Päck, was gracious with just a hint of dangerous and willing to cross blades with our own Nad Konkor on the rooftops of Booty Bay, while the rest of us learned to speak Pirate!

While dressed up, we were invited to a beach party and ran into several goblins, and a couple of friends and ended up getting some rare footage of a few of these sneaky sneaks! Overall, Quite an enjoyable evening with friends.

Rumor from the Eternal Palace

Vashj'ir A Buzz

Naga are trickling in from across the ocean, battered and bloody. Strike imminent is the word across the seas. Claims Azshara misled and underpaid for the number of hours they were expected to stand guard duty at the Eternal Palace, as well as a lack of hazard pay in recent weeks. "Let's hope they find another job and don't come back here. It will make my job easier," suggested one adventurer as he literally walked in unscathed.

Crime Around Azeroth: New Reports as of Sept 21 2019

Forsaken Missing Limbs

Reports from Orgrimmar, atop the battlements: Forsaken missing limbs. Several supplies of limbs taken in the night have investigators baffled. Of little to no help, one Forsaken said, "this is nothing new, we are always having to find a new limb here or there," as investigators attempted to track down where the supplies (see picture below) have been taken.

Aimee's Cakes Missing

Aimee, vendor of Pies, Pasties, and Cakes, reports several cakes missing from her inventory. The longtime resident of Dalaran stated that nothing was different when she arrived at the shop, though she did continue to hear that a well-known Highmountain resident was overheard complaining about the lack of dessert recipes in the Redwood Times!

Wanted! New Reports as of Sept 21 2019

Wanted Information on the Reported Death of Aeriara

Word filtered in from earlier this week that someone from the Salty Sea Doggos has killed Aeriara the leader of The Ashen Vale. This is a serious accusation and anyone with information should report to the nearest guard office... on the Alliance side, of course.

Wanted Gnome Punchers

Reports from Mechagon! Some of the Horde are taking things too far. They are not respecting the main hubs and following Alliance into the sanctuary areas, breaking the truce and killing not only alliance but many of the Mechagon gnomes... Dreams of being a tinker are getting dashed as the potential trainers are dying gruesome deaths.

Chief's Corner

Greetings,

Autumn comes!

It seems like it has been a long summer, fighting and fighting, never ending war between our forces. Will the cool winds of Autumn finally quench the heated passions, or is War so ingrained in our blood that we will never hear the words whispered for peace and healing?

It is not for me to decide, but our leaders... I only hope they make the right decision in the days to come.

Stuffed Mushrooms

- Fresh Mushrooms – medium sized from just up the mountain from Mistfall Village
- Cream cheese – The base of the creamy filling.
- Aged cheddar – For bold smoky flavor.
- Parmesan cheese – To create a crusty top.
- Roasted red peppers – Adds a pop of tang and color.
- Onions and garlic – season to taste

Instructions:

Gently pop off the stems of the mushrooms to create a cavity. Either discard the stems or save for later use. Brush off dirt.

Soften the cream cheese. Then mix it with the shredded smoked cheddar cheese, diced red pepper, onion, and garlic. Pinch of salt and pepper

Fill the mushroom cavities with plenty of cheese filling. It's ok if it pops over the top; that gives the parmesan cheese something to cling to.

Press each cheese-stuffed top in grated Parmesan cheese. Set on baking dish

Leave in the oven for 30-35 minutes, until the tops are puffed and golden. The mushrooms should look dark and soft.

Ashenvale Battle Reports:

9.12.2019 - Alliance Rally and Redwood Tribes Counter Mission

Reports of a delayed strike following massive Alliance rally in Astranaar led by Gonebald. Redwood Tribes held back in Splintertree Post focused on two objectives.

The first objective was apparently led by a false rumor that alliance forces were due to split off the main group after the rally, the bulk of the forces to attack the Barrens and to be met with Horde forces, while a small group of "Night Elves" (pejorative term corrected by the editor) were assigned to attack and recover the Warsong Lumber Camp lands. Redwood rode to the lumber camp and found the area uncontested.

Answering the need for blood, the Tribes marched swiftly to Astranaar, not only after the rally, but after another Horde strike force met with Alliance on the roads of Ashenvale. The Tribes spared countless lives of children and innocents, retrieving food stores to be used in the Horde war effort.

Below: Astranaar relieved of numerous supplies to be distributed to Horde citizens in need

While returning to Splintertree Post, they stopped at a Kaldorei landmark, the moonwell at Raynewood Retreat and took the opportunity to test the Moonwell's level of purity. One Orc stated, "Not taste same as fresh stream water." (Pictured above, the level of purity has either decreased or increased by the number of Horde present in the moonwell)

With bloodlust upon them, the Tribes turned on Silverwind Refuge, where they met heavy resistance. Author recognized the Silverwind Enclave and Starborne banners from earlier intelligence reports, and though Redwood was forced to fall back under heavy fire, there was still enough fight left that they returned to the Barrens and helped to mob up the last of the invading Gonebald forces!

When asked why they did not push in with the rest of the Horde, Chieftain Brightmane stated simply, "An' she led us first to protect Horde forces, and then take part in the rest of the war effort. And some of the Orcs needed to bathe, so the stop at Raynewood Retreat was much needed."

9.14.2019 - "The Battle for Astranaar" - Coordinated by Flarefang/Killeiwatt

Five armies met five armies and much chaos ensued. Seeking revenge for the attack on the Barrens, several Horde tribes and clans answered the call to invade Astranaar. Seeking a return to an easy target, Horde leaders moved to Raynewood Retreat, and saw a sizable Alliance army gathered before them. Testing and taunting ensued to see who would break ranks, but officers on both sides were able to keep flared tempers in check as the Alliance moved back into the forests of Raynewood.

Pictured Above: Forces Gathering Beneath Raynewood Retreat

Invited Armies included:

- Alliance: Emerald Alliance, Clan Hammersong, Starborne, Silverwind Enclave, Bronzebread Bakery
 - Horde: Redwood Tribes, Atal'Alarion, Lok'tra Tribes, Kor'Kron Guard, Blacktooth Grin
- Many more arrived to take part once the battles began!

Seeking to outflank the Alliance, Horde forces moved up the road towards Felwood and the back of the Retreat, only to have Alliance forces dog their steps from behind, picking off stragglers.

One eye-witness stated, "We turned on them swiftly but we had already lost the advantage."

Routed, the Horde retreated to the bridge over the river Falfarren River. The Alliance clashed again, a force twice the size of the beleaguered Horde, who retreated again towards Splintertree Post. While marching onward, the Alliance soldiers were joined by Clan Battlehammer, forty strong, and together they launched an attack on the Horde outpost.

But this time, they met the combined resistance of Outpost guards, Horde fighters, and Vhulgra's trained wyverns, who did not take kindly to those alliance that brandished swords in their direction. The Alliance broke and were forced to retreat at long last.

Upon returning to Orgrimmar, reports from the field indicated that additional forces were needed if lands from Ashenvale are to be secured for the Horde!

9.8.2019 - Booty Bay - Meeting

What do the members of Clan Hammersong and Redwood Times have in common?

Ale, Stout, and Firewater of course! And they met for the first time in Booty Bay for plenty of drinking Or is there more to it as Redwood Tribesmen escorted Chieftain Ayashe Brightmane to a meeting inside the tavern with Thane Gargrim Hammersong on a balmy night under Mu'sha's gaze???

9.13.2019 Durotar – Scavenger Hunt Hosted by The Hordinators

Picking up a flyer, I grabbed one of our younglings, Gorgul, and headed to Razor Hill, meeting a few formidable and shady looking characters that were meeting around a mailbox. I held back a bit, but eventually after meeting Kurinator and Ruminator, I saw that I had mail. The Eagle Delivery System is fantastic in this day and age!

But, I digress... as I pieced together the clues, the race to collect the items needed to fulfill the terms of the tournament, started! We ran in separate directions, some towards the Southfury River, and some towards the harpy infested canyons just north of Razor Hill. As the hunters returned fulfilling all or part of the contracted items, prizes were given out to those that finished in the top spots, including Gorgul, the victorious!

First Blow Struck Against Alliance Stain, Hand of Lordaeron Victorious in Battle

Contributor: Dr. Crest - writer, Tel - photographer

For some time, a collection of humans and their allies calling themselves the Alliance of Lordaeron has been entrenched in the Southshore region, purportedly fighting to reclaim "lost" Lordaeronian land for the living. This is an absurdity! Lordaeron is in the hands of its rightful citizens, the Forsaken. Tiring of their continued probing attacks on Tarren Mill, Mortarch Lucian of the Hand of Lordaeron led a contingent of troops to confront these interlopers in the vicinity of the Durnholde Ruins. Our merciful Mortarch offered terms of surrender to the Alliance, offering them safe passage out of the country in exchange for the surrender of all claims to Forsaken land. The Alliance deemed it better to die needlessly than to accept surrender, however, and thus battle became inevitable. Following a rousing speech by the Mortarch, the two forces clashed in a fast but bloody exchange. Your humble chronicler participated in the fighting and saw first-hand how the Alliance were beaten. The Alliance foolishly relies solely on the Light to protect them and fielded primarily warriors and paladins. The Hand, however, fielded a greater number of Warlocks and Priests of the Shadow. Confounded by our magic and with fear in their hearts, the Alliance was scattered across the field and hunted down by our own warriors. The survivors were allowed to flee the field and return to their leaders with the clear message: Lordaeron belongs to the Forsaken. Following our victory, the Hand of Lordaeron led a triumphant procession back to Tarren Mill. This chronicler wishes to praise the brave troops who fought for our homeland on the field, as well as our stalwart allies the Grimtotem Tauren for their support and valor on the battlefield. The threat of the so-called Alliance of Lordaeron has not yet ended, however, and all members of the Hand as well as all allied Horde are advised that the Battle for Hillsbrad has just begun. The enemy has suffered a defeat, but not a crushing one. The Alliance is likely to retaliate at any moment and all must be on guard. This humble chronicler will continue to report on the progress of our campaign to eradicate all enemies of the Forsaken and reclaim our homeland once and for all.

For the Dark Lady, and For Lordaeron

Earthen Ring Escapades

9.10.2019 Spirit Rise Thunder Bluff Call of the Shaman 2

The Earthen Ring met once again, this time within the large tent on Spirit Rise. Master Gin'jojo and Chieftain Suragosh Foreblade took positions at the main entrance and to greet and welcome the attendees, while inside many were allowed time to speak and all listened as findings about Stonetalon and grave news from Blackrock Mountain were brought before the assembled.

Earthspear Clan held their news for as long as they could, giving many time to speak about the mining of the goblins and kobolds, the shredders tearing down hundreds of Oaks, and the anguish and anger of the elementals that inhabit the rocky land.

Finally, Sanar Earthspear of Earthspear Clan, stepped forward and spoke of Blackrock Mountain. Many present were not aware that the Firelord was growing in strength, in fact many did not have the fortitude to yet venture to the lands surrounding Blackrock.

Those present agreed to send scouts to the surrounding lands, at least those that were able to travel that distance and would not be at undue risk, while the bulk of the Earthen Ring would journey and meet in a quarter moon, in the small village of Sun Rock Retreat, there to address the agitation of the elementals in that land.

9.18.2019 Stonetalon Mountains "The Corruption of Stonetalon"

The Earthen Ring and their supporters gathered at Sun Rock Retreat and after quick discussion of the issues at hand, most members headed towards Windshear Crag to investigate the havoc caused by Goblin deforestation, while a small group went to investigate the Charred Vale. The Charred Vale group felt something was amiss and doubled back to Windshear Crag meeting up in time for trouble.

As if Goblins were not causing enough disruption and upsetting the elementals throughout the area with oil spills in the small valley lake, the destruction of the Oak trees without thought to replanting efforts, and the constant blasting creating a teeth grinding echo throughout the canyon, the Earthen Ring Squad ran afoul of patrolling Kaldorei and were forced to retreat back to Sun Rock Retreat after numerous pitched battles. The Kaldorei picked off stragglers and pressured the group except for one stalwart effort that pushed them back and gave the Earthen Ring enough time to destroy a few more goblin "machines" in the area. A full report will be forwarded to the Elders and Farseers of the Earthen Ring.

The Tribes

Skyseer's View

I am Okwaho Skyseer, advisor to the Redwood Tribes, Seer of the Earthen Ring, and speaker to the editor that writes these words. .

The future I speak to may or may not come to pass, but still, I give a warning and do my best to protect the future of our people here and now. .

It seems we constantly fight, and can never trust the word of the Alliance. Hotheads and warmongers exist on both sides, for we also can not trust those that eat at our own insides. We must be forever vigilant against threats within and without.

My only trust is with the Earth Mother to guide us forth safely and with those that prove themselves true to the path of Honor and Integrity!

Ayashe Brightmane's Blog - Part 2

9.19.2019 Sun Rock Retreat to The Great Lift

Today was one of those days. I was handed a letter to give to a guard at the very southern end of the Barrens. I do not mind the run some days, but there are times I wish I would just learn to ride a Kodo to make my life easier. However time, money and investment into riding a Kodo seem like a lot of work. There is, of course, the fact I could talk to a Flight Master to have them give me a lift for a few silver to the nearest village. However today, I opted to walk from Sun Rock Retreat, Stonetalon to the very end of the Barrens. During this time I reflected upon my choices in life. One such'tiem was when I was asked to lead Redwood Tribes. I accepted the responsibility to lead 3 tribes to help fight against the alliance and all those who will try to take Kalimdor for their own. Therefore, I pledged our allegiance to the Horde and to Warchief Thrall. It is my oath to my Shu'halo Tribes, my Chieftains, and those who have looked to me to guide them. Thus I turn to Earth Mother's guiding wisdom to give me strength when I need it the most.

The Quest: Calling in the Reserves

Description The Horde does well keeping our troops fresh... since the Great War we have been prosperous here in Kalimdor. I need you to do me a favor, I have a lad by the name of Grish Longrunner protecting the Great Lift in the southern barrens. Give him this letter; the letter will let him know that I have a reserve warrior coming to relieve him of duty so that he can visit his family. He requested this sometime ago and he would be happy to hear the news.

Progress You have news from Maggran Earthbinder?

Completion This is great news; I have been sitting here guarding this hunk-of wood for too long. Now I can spend some time with my family... Yippee!

Rites of Passage Part 1

9.15.19 Crossroads Journey

There is always a coming of age! A transition to be made between no responsibility and responsibility.

The Tribes gathered their initiates, Orc, Troll, and Shu'halo for the first of four tests that must be passed within the Redwood Tribes to come of age. Only by working together was this first test accomplished, and another group of younglings will attempt their first Rites of Passage in a quarter moon. Their next challenges will not be as easy... But we celebrate the start of the journey and look forward to the next!
